Friday Screenings

November 29: The Dark Knight Rises (2012)

Christian Bale takes it up another notch in the latest of the iconic and visually stunning Batman series.

December 13: The Matrix (1999)

The movie that has defined a generation featuring computer hackers, mysterious rebels, virtual reality, and the controllers.

December 20: The Blues Brothers (1980)

Rollicking flick with rousing R&B/Soul/Rock music, Belushi and Aykroyd, and the car chase to end all car chases.

December 27: Raiders of the Lost Ark (1981)

The first and fleetest of the wildly successful Spielberg series featuring archeologist and adventurer Indiana Jones.

January 3: Valley of the Dolls (1968)

A campy, cult relic about three actresses' rise and fall in the cruel world of prescription drugs, sex, love, and show business.

January 10: The Twilight Saga: New Moon (2009)

They're young; they're hip; they're vampires (and werewolves) in paranormal relationships.

January 17: Dreamgirls (2006)

Based on the hit Broadway musical, a Supremes-like trio of female soul singers conquer the pop charts in the 1960s. One word: Beyoncé

January 24: Vertigo (1958)

Alfred Hitchcock's most ethereal, surrealistic, and mysterious with Jimmy Stewart and Kim Novak playing mind games.

January 31: Taxi Driver (1976)

Quintessential Martin Scorsese with Robert De Niro in the sleazy and decadent New York City underworld.
