6 sessions, Oct 6–Nov 10

Wed, 2–3 pm

Pauley Center Parlor

$90 (VMFA members $75) | Limit: 25

The period of French art history called the Age d'Or, the Golden Age, was founded early in the reign of Louis XIV (1643–1718), when the most important French artists didn't even live in France. The creation of the Royal Academy—the first national art establishment—set the course for the rest of Western art when artists working outside this powerful state organization gave rise to a succession of extraordinary artistic movements that served France's ever-changing society. In this series we shall see how an admirer of Nicolas Poussin established the classical canon of the Academy, how imported paintings by Claude Lorrain established landscape as an important subject in French painting, and how the culture at the court of Versailles was challenged by Jean-Antoine Watteau and other outsider artists working in Paris. We will also explore ways that official painters such as François Boucher and unofficial ones like Jean-Honoré Fragonard expressed the fantasies and the realities of French culture leading up to the Revolution.

CURATOR'S TALK | Man Ray: The Paris Years

DR. MICHAEL TAYLOR, Chief Curator and Deputy Director for Art and Education
Fri, Oct 29 | 6:30–7:30 pm
Leslie Cheek Theater
$8 ($5 VMFA members)

This lecture focuses on the innovative portrait photographs that Man Ray (the pseudonym of Emmanuel Radnitzky) made in the French capital between 1921 and 1940. In the early decades of the 20th century, Paris became famous as a powerful and evocative symbol of artistic freedom and daring experimentation, drawing a large number of artists, architects, composers, dancers, fashion designers, filmmakers, musicians, and writers. Shortly after his arrival in July 1921, Man Ray embarked on a sustained campaign to document the international avant-garde in Paris in a series of remarkable portraits that established his reputation as one of the leading photographers of his era. Man Ray's portraits went beyond recording the mere outward appearance of the person depicted and aimed instead to capture the essence of his sitters as creative individuals, as well as the collective character of Les Années folles (the crazy years) of Paris between the two world wars.

Paul Mellon Lecture: Van Gogh and The Olive Groves

DR. NICOLE R. MYERS, Barbara Thomas Lemmon Senior Curator of European Art, Dallas Museum of Art
Thu, Nov 4 | 6:30–7:30 pm
Leslie Cheek Theater | Free, tickets required

Between June and December 1889, Vincent van Gogh produced a stunning series of fifteen paintings dedicated to the olive groves that dotted the rugged countryside outside his residence at the asylum in Saint-Rémy-de-Provence. Bold and experimental, they comprise one of the most ambitious series in the artist's oeuvre. Yet despite the aesthetic and symbolic significance that van Gogh ascribed to them, they are surprisingly obscure. In this lecture, Dr. Myers will contextualize the olive grove series within van Gogh's artistic production and explore the deeply personal, often religious resonance the motif held for the painter.

TALK + BOOK SIGNING Ansel Adams and The Natural Scene

DR. REBECCA SENF, Chief Curator, Center for Creative Photography

7:30–8:30 pm | Book Signing | Conference Center Suites | Free

She will discuss how his early experiences connected him to the wilderness and how his decades of thinking about nature and photography led to the creation of his celebrated signature style. Her talk will feature his iconic images and lesser-known early works and will provide a sense of who Ansel Adams was and how that influenced who he came to be.
