Borobudur Temple, Java

TEMPLES TO THE GODS

Since ancient times, rulers have built temples to serve as holy places of worship, bring prestige to their kingdoms, and represent wealth and power. In Indonesia, Hindu is the oldest religion, having come from India around the second century, with Buddhism following as the second oldest religion. Buddhist temples symbolize the five elements of wisdom, water, fire, wind, and earth. Hindu temples are often centered around one towering shrine surrounded by a complex of individual temples and bordered by a wall. Borobudur Temple compound is a 8th- and 9th-century Mahayana Buddhist temple situated on a remote hilltop in central Java. Hailed as one of the greatest, and largest, Buddhist monuments in the world and designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site, this monument draws pilgrims from around the world to stand in awe of its elaborate construction and 504 sitting Buddha statues meditating over the holy temple. Also in Java, UNESCO-inscribed Prambanan Temple compound was built in the 10th century and is the largest Hindu temple in Indonesia. Its central Shiva temple, standing at 154 feet, is surrounded by 240 smaller temples. The fact that of Borobudur and Prambanan temples were built in proximity to one another in Java is testament to the idea that Buddhism and Hinduism once coexisted peacefully.

CREATURES GREAT AND SMALL

Komodo dragon

Arowana "Dragon" Fish

Indonesia is a world of natural wonder, with an abundance of rare endemic species—including some you won't find anywhere else—with 9 species of primates, 230 species of birds, 2 species of crocodiles, and the highly endangered "dragon" fish. Encounter some of these fascinating creatures as we visit 2 of that region's most extraordinary national parks. The UNESCO Biosphere Reserve of Tanjung Puting in south Borneo is home to the largest wild orangutan population in the world. See these fascinating great apes in their natural habitat as you wind your way through the river jungle. Our tour also takes us to the Komodo National Park, a group of volcanic islands inhabited by endangered native giant lizards that exist nowhere else on Earth. Growing to a size of nearly 10 feet long, weighing as much as 300 pounds, and preying on every other species on the islands, these "Komodo dragons" reign at the top of the food chain.
